Appendix A: Summary-Level Realignment Data Collection Efforts

There are currently three data sources that provide standardized county-level data on realigned offender populations. When collecting and reporting these data, county probation departments, jails, and local courts adhere to a set of common definitions which allows for reporting at the state- or county-level. Table 1 outlines these realignment data efforts, summarizes their contents and provides information on where the data can be accessed.

The Public Policy Institute of California is dedicated to informing and improving public policy in California through independent, objective, nonpartisan research on major economic, social, and political issues. The institute's goal is to raise public awareness and to give elected representatives and other decisionmakers a more informed basis for developing policies and programs.

The institute's research focuses on the underlying forces shaping California's future, cutting across a wide range of public policy concerns, including economic development, education, environment and resources, governance, population, public finance, and social and health policy.

PPIC is a public charity. It does not take or support positions on any ballot measures or on any local, state, or federal legislation, nor does it endorse, support, or oppose any political parties or candidates for public office. PPIC was established in 1994 with an endowment from William R. Hewlett.

Mark Baldassare is President and Chief Executive Officer of PPIC.

Donna Lucas is Chair of the Board of Directors.
