PARTICIPANTS

Mark Baldassare is president and CEO of the Public Policy Institute of California, where he holds the Arjay and Frances Fearing Miller Chair in Public Policy. He is a leading expert on public opinion and survey methodology, and has directed the PPIC Statewide Survey since 1998. He is an authority on elections, voter behavior, and political and fiscal reform, authoring ten books and numerous reports on these topics. He often provides testimony before legislative committees and state commissions, and regularly hosts PPIC's Speaker Series, a public forum featuring in-depth interviews with state and national leaders. He holds a PhD in sociology from the University of California, Berkeley.

London Breed is the 45th mayor of the City and County of San Francisco and the first African American woman mayor in the city's history. As mayor, she has focused on helping the city's homeless population into care and shelter, including opening up more than 330 new shelter beds and helping over 1,000 people exit homelessness. She has invested in workforce development opportunities for local residents, including her Opportunities for All initiative, which provides paid internships for youth to prepare for their future careers. She has also pushed to make San Francisco a cleaner and safer city by expanding street cleaning and increasing police foot patrols in order to stabilize areas of need. In addition, she is pushing ambitious environmental goals, including transitioning to 100 percent renewable energy by 2030. Previously, she served for six years on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, where she passed legislation to create more housing along transit corridors and prioritize residents for affordable housing opportunities in their communities. She helped to reform the city's emergency response systems, secured funding for San Francisco's homelessness support network, and enacted the strongest Styrofoam ban in the country. She is a native San Franciscan, raised by her grandmother in Plaza East Public Housing in the Western Addition. She attended the University of California, Davis, earning a BA in political science/public service with a minor in African American studies. She holds an MPA from the University of San Francisco.

A. Marisa Chun leads McDermott Will & Emery LLP's Bay Area Litigation practice group, focusing on complex business litigation and white-collar defense matters. She represents clients in matters involving trade secrets and intellectual property, breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, privacy, and unfair competition, as well as in government investigations and proceedings brought by the US Department of Justice, state attorneys general offices, and other agencies involving alleged health care and financial fraud, the False Claims Act, the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, and antitrust violations. She served as deputy associate attorney general at the US Department of Justice. She also served as a special assistant US attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia and the District of Maryland. She has served as a mediator for the US District Court, president of the Korean American Bar Association of Northern California, and a Coro Fellow in Public Affairs. She holds a BA from Yale University and a JD from Harvard Law School.
