Informing and improving public policy through independent, objective, nonpartisan research.

Zaira Joaquín Morales

PROJECT ASSISTANT

Zaira Joaquín Morales is a project assistant at the PPIC Water Policy Center. She provides critical research support to advance PPIC’s water and natural resource research agenda. Before joining PPIC, she worked for the Department of Animal Science at University of California, Davis, where she studied methane emissions from the state’s dairy sector. She holds a BS from University of California, Davis, where she participated in two research projects—on water resource management with a focus on issues in the Rio Grande basin and on soil science with a focus on groundwater recharge and its links to water quality.
